

From: Gary Moore
To: Moore, Gary
Subject: Fwd: CES
Date: Thursday, April 09, 2015 4:38:49 PM

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Tidmore, Guy <tidmore.guy@epa.gov>
Date: Thu, Apr 9, 2015 at 1:46 PM
Subject: RE: CES
To: Gary Moore <garywmoore1964@gmail.com>

I didn't mentally process that it was lime solids. This is lime sludges from their tank. I can't remember anything in there that might be a characteristic, so, you should be good to go when you get the analysis back.

Guy

-----Original Message-----

From: Gary Moore [mailto:garywmoore1964@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 09, 2015 12:27 PM
To: Tidmore, Guy
Subject: Re: CES

They will need to rehydrate it. We pulled a sample today and it looks pretty pure. Analytical will let us know.

Gary

Sent from my iPhone

> On Apr 9, 2015, at 8:19 AM, Tidmore, Guy <tidmore.guy@epa.gov> wrote:

>

> Is their lime pond their storage/supply of lime? Is the pond expected to transform the material? If so, how?

>

> Guy Tidmore, Chief

> Compliance Enforcement Section

> Hazardous Waste Branch

> Desk - 214/665-3142

> Cell - 214/789-2586

>

> Sent from my iPhone

>

>> On Apr 7, 2015, at 6:42 PM, Gary Moore <garywmoore1964@gmail.com> wrote:

>>

>> Guy

>>

>> We are considering sending the LIME in the LIME tank to US Lime on a Bill of Lading to be used by the as product. They will dump it into their lime pond. Do you see any issues with this. This will be free vs about $12000.

>>

>> Gary

>>

>> Sent from my iPhone